Will Add Second Story

Joseph Morsch and Will Klenk, who are having a business building erected on Locust street between Sixth and Fifth have concluded to build two stories instead of one, as at first contemplated. The second story will be used exclusively by the Yeomen as odge quarters.

That this new building is to be two story instead of one will add much to its appearance and will not "cheapen" Locust street as a one story building

Kunkel Family Hold a Reunion.

A reunion of the Kunkle family was held Sunday, October 17th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Amandus Kunkel southwest of town. Eight children and seventeen grandchidren were present and a very happy day was spent by all. One of the enjoyable features was the three course dinner served.

The Kunkel family are old residents of the county and are among our best citizens.

The Submarine.

There is little glorious about the service of the submarine. She is the sneak of war's bloodthirstiness, creep ing upon her victim like a murderer in the dark. For her there is no defiant battleflag, no glint of sun on wave, no thrilling rear of battle. She worms her slimy way through the murk to kill or be killed in the horridly practical business of slaughter. Her seamen toll amid mere machines. For the scent of burning powder she supplies the reek of gasoline. Her crashing broadside is but the hacking cough of compressed air. And her end comes not with mastheaded ensign, but upside down, with her people tangled in the gear. And this is the service which takes the strongest, the bravest, the dauntless. There can be no trepidation in the spirit which guides the submarine twisting through the depths, where, if she cannot be seen, she cannot see and where death lurks everywhere.—Hartford Times.

The bandinging, as today, was done so that the folds crossed at right angles, with a view to their being kept in place. Palm fiber was used to serve the function of cotton wool and a neither to take the place of gauze.

His One Luxury.

A wealthy London dandy was noted for always wearing a coostly flower in his buttoubole. Then, he lost all his money and in time became shall his morey and in time became shall his more for the present day, and so, in very lavish mood. he struck a bargain with the florist that for a lump sum down—and it was not a small one—he was to be supplied with a fresh bounguet of his own choice every day for five years. The result was that, although sometimes he had not enough ready cash for a crust of bread, the was always able to claim his flower and to sport "a poppy or a liy" as he walked down the Strund.—London Answers.
